Frank Lytle came up this afternoon and says the Suncrest grove is white with blooms.

UNIQUE AND USEFUL

The editor of the Star has just received, with the compliments of the publishers, a copy of the Kodol Almanac and 200 Year Calendar, which is certainly a most unique and useful book.

With a copy of this publication at hand one is in possession of a calendar which covers the past as far back as the day of our national independence, meets all the requirements of the present, and dates as far into the future as near the beginning of the next century.

By reference to this calendar the day of the week of any given date in any month of the year, from 1776 to 1976, may be found at a glance. This information cannot be found in any other publication extant. Another feature of remarkable interest that this publication possesses, is its weather forecasts. These predictions are not only full and complete, and as accurate and reliable as it is possible to calculate, but they are definite geographically, thus localizing the predictions and foretelling the weather which may be looked for in each section of the country.

Messrs. E. C. DeWitt & Co., of Chicago, are sole owners and publishers of the Kodol Almanac and 200 Year Calendar, and while several millions of copies are in circulation, they have yet a few hundred copies of the first edition, and will send one copy to any one enclosing a two cent stamp, with a request for same, provided this paper is mentioned.
